

January 1, 2010

Dear Mission-Minded Lay and Clergy leaders,

This letter is to advise you as to the work of the 2010 Congregational Development Investment Team that has set the process of allocating financial resources that are available to all the congregations of the diocese. The Diocesan Convention approved Diocesan Operating Budget shows that $21,275 of Congregational Development Investments is still available to be allocated for 2010 & $8,000 is still available in Regional Ministry Initiatives for congregations looking for financial assistance. If there is a new mission initiative you are planning for next year, this is the place to look for a diocesan co-investment.

First, enclosed is a list of the requirements and criteria by which we make decisions. Second, is an application which clearly reflects what information we are looking for in raising up healthy, mission focused congregations ministering in the 21st century. All congregations receiving an investment should plan on sharing what they did, what happened and what they learned.

We remind you and the leadership of your church to be bold and dream of an area of new mission development for 2010. These funds are earmarked for new initiatives and responses to God's call in your local ministry setting. You know your context for ministry best, and we wish to work with you as you engage a mission priority that cannot be ignored.

In 2009, some of the projects funded involved youth ministry, creating alternative worship services and Christian formation projects. Please note that projects over $10,000 are rarely funded.

The final deadline – March 24, 2010

This will allow the team time to review all the requests, make the allocations and set up the process for 2011 investments. The mandate for the team remains to support churches with specific projects or proposals that strengthen healthy mission-focused ministry in the Diocese.

Please review the attached application and information.

If you need assistance in preparing the application, call one of us.

Congregations will be notified by late April, 2010 if they are receiving funds.

Forward the completed and signed application to the:
